

Schedule I
(See Rule 16(4))

Standard Classification of Industrial and Trading Activities

There are three levels of classification. First, a dealer is either a manufacturer or a trader. If he is both, he will be classified according to his principal activity, which is one that generates higher turnover. The basis of classification is the type of activity carried on in the State of Haryana and not globally, e.g., TISCO is a steel manufacturer but it is a trader in Haryana.

The second level in case of manufacturing is the industry classification and the third is the product profile. If the product profile of a dealer spans two or more entries under the same industry classification, the dealer should be assigned the industry code.

In case of trading, the second level is trade, works contract or leasing. The third level in case of trade is the commodity dealt in; in case of works contractor it is the type of contract and in case of leasing it is the type of goods leased. A wholesaler and a retailer have, in most cases, been listed separately. There is a residuary entry in case of each class. A dealer who does not fit in a specific entry should be put in the residuary entry with a brief description of the business activity and the goods sold, manufactured or dealt in any other manner, as the case may be.
